At the Reformed Church on Sunday, both morning and evening, services were appropriate for the Christmas time. The church was made quite a home of beauty with its green and red decorations. The three choir, under the very efficient leader, S. A. Van Wagner, and organist, Mrs. L. D. Tenney, were ably assisted by an orchestra of six pieces. The singing of the Christmas hymns, by choir and congregation, was an inspiration and the choir very ably rendered two beautiful Christmas anthems. At the morning service, during offertory, the pastor, the Rev. W. S. Maines, delivered two very able sermons. The subject of the morning was, "The Democracy of Christmas," and the evening theme was "The Kingship of Christ." The title of the sermon rendered was "The Song of Ages." The services throughout the day were enjoyed by the large congregations attending. The annual Christmas service of the Sunday school was held on Christmas night. A special program entitled, "The Star of the East," consisting of songs, drills, recitations, etc. A large tree lighted with many colored electric lights had a place in one corner of the auditorium and around it were placed the gifts for members of the schools. The choir was under the direction of the leader, Mr. Van Wagner, while Mrs. Maines led the school in all their songs. The choir was assisted by an orchestra of several pieces. The children taking part did well and the entire program was given by all. The Rev. W. S. Maines gave a very interesting talk of the Christmas time and then came Santa Claus to distribute the gifts. He was especially enjoyed by the younger members of the school and several children of the cradle roll were present with their parents and received a little gift to the delight of their young heart. It was altogether a pleasant affair for young and old alike, and much credit is due all those who assisted in the arrangement of the fine program.

At the annual meeting of the Bible class of the Reformed Church recently held the following were elected as officers for the fiscal year: President, Louis Tenney; vice president, Nial Deput; secretary, Edward B. Kimble; treasurer, John A. Tice; the Rev. W. S. Maines, the teacher.

The KITCHEN CABINET

No form of service is drudgery, if the one who serves is free. All forms of service, mental, or physical, are drudgery if the one who serves is in a "state of bondage."

He who has conferred a kindness should be silent, he who has received one should speak of it.

GOOD THINGS FOR STATE OCCASIONS.

Celery to be used for the table, should be thoroughly chilled. By adding a slice of lemon or a dash of vinegar to the water, the celery is kept white and made crisp.

Apple and Cheese Salad.—Wipe and pare apples and scoop out 24 balls, using a French vegetable cutter. Marinate with French dressing and chill thoroughly. Mash a cream cheese, and add a tablespoonful of chopped pickles, and three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt. Shape into 12 balls the same size as the apple balls and roll in finely chopped parsley. Arrange a bed of crisp heart leaves of lettuce, sprinkle over it the celery cut in one strips an inch and a half in length. Arrange the balls on the lettuce and serve with French dressing.

Turnip Cones.—Wash and pare turnips and cut in cone or cube shape, using a vegetable cutter; there should be three cupsful. Put them into a casserole, add a half teaspoonful of salt, one and a half teaspoonfuls of sugar, one-fourth of a cupful of sweet fat, a dash of pepper, and a half cupful of boiling water. Cover and boil until the turnips are tender, about an hour and a half.

Brown Giblet Gravy.—Pour off all the liquid in the pan in which the turkey has been roasted. From the liquid skim off six tablespoonfuls of fat and return it to the roasting pan, add six tablespoonfuls of flour and stir until well blended, then cook until well browned. Pour on gradually, while stirring constantly, three cupfuls of stock. If you have none, use any vegetable water that vegetables have been cooked in, such as potato water, stir and cook until smooth, season and strain. To obtain stock cover the giblets, neck and wing tips with five cupfuls of cold water and let simmer until reduced to three cupfuls. The giblets are finely chopped and added to the gravy.

CITY COURT WHO OWNS THE COW

The ownership of "one red and white cow with horns weighing about 900 pounds" furnished the basis of a lively and interesting lawsuit tried in city court this morning. The action was one in replevin brought by Morris Basch against Mr. and Mrs. William J. Rahders, all of this city.

The plaintiff claimed that in response to a "For sale notice" in The Freeman, he bought of the defendants on December 7th, last, the cow in question, and that he paid Mr. Rahders $50, the agreed price, but that later in the day when he called to take the cow away, Mrs. Rahders told him he could not have the cow. As the part of the defendants it was claimed there was no sale, but that they would not sell the cow for less than $85, and would not sell her to a dealer; that Mr. Basch was informed that the cow was owned by Mrs. Rahders, and that she told him she would not sell the cow to him; that the plaintiff stripped off $50 from a roll as big as a stove pipe, and threw it at Mr. Rahders, telling him that the sheriff would come and get the cow.

It developed in the course of the trial that the animal was bought some time ago from a brother of the plaintiff, "with whom he does not speak," and that transaction also furnished the basis of a trial in court. The cow is now reported as resting comfortably in the possession of the sheriff, under a requisition in replevin. Several motions were made on the part of the defendants, the decision of which as well as the whole matter, was reserved by Judge Blumner. During the trial City Judge-elect Schirck occupied the bench with Judge Brinker and got many points in cow law. The plaintiff was represented by Newton H. Fessenden, and Milton Anchmood appeared for the defendants. In the meantime the cow was probably peacefully chewing her cud.

COAL CARDS FOR NEW YORK

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Dec. 28.—Coming on the heels of the warning of a new cold spell to begin Friday, Fuel Administrator Reeve Schley today announced that New York city will see its first coal cards Monday. He is acting under orders of National Fuel Administrator Harry A. Garfield who believes that the card system will solve the problem of equitable coal distribution most efficiently. Hearty co-operation of the coal dealers is expected, but the methods by which the cards are to be distributed has not been announced.

An Aviator's Farewell.
Monsieur de Giberget, bishop of Valence, has lost his seventh nephew in the war—M. Anthelme de Giberget, amongst whose papers was found the following moving letter of farewell addressed to his parents:
"If one day, with wings broken in the blue heavens, I fall to the earth and return to God, may these lines carry to my father and mother the last thoughts, desires and dreams of the son they loved so tenderly. As my body nears the earth, my soul will soar to unknown heights, and the separation will be victory. It will be a full-hearted 'Magnificent' adoring prayer of expiation for what I have left undone rather than for what I have done. And lastly it will be a suppliant cry which cannot but be heard for everlasting life, for strength and comfort for those I leave behind, and for mercy and glory for beloved France, the coming of the Kingdom of God."

Fools the Pickpockets.
An automatic clamping device prevents a wallet falling from a man's pocket and even will defy pickpockets who do not know how it is operated.

AUSTRIAN TORPEDOES.

HUGE TORPEDOES FOR AUSTRIA'S UNDERSEA FLEET.

This photograph was one of the few that reached here from Austria in months, showing workmen in one of the largest munition works in Austria wheeling a flat car loaded with torpedoes to a pier, where they are loaded aboard the U-boats. An idea of the immensity of the huge projectiles is had by comparing them with the workmen.

Does Not Reduce the Price.
A pipe has been invented which fills itself as fast as the tobacco in the bowl is consumed. How Mark Twain would have appreciated this modern convenience! While Mr. Clemens was a young man, it is said, he contrived a pipe, consisting of a can of tobacco placed on the floor, to which a long rubber tube was attached. Then he would light the whole can and smoke in bed.—Exchange.

Growing of Troubles.
Annoying troubles, noxious weeds that they are, must have the elements of ordinary life or they will fade away and die—a receptive soil in which to grow, the mixture of one's own tears as well as the tears of as many other good people as can be induced to cry, and the gentle sunlight of sympathetic attention.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

RIVER ICE HARVEST TO START MONDAY

Knickerbocker Ice Company and Burns Brothers Expect to put Men to Work that Morning—Ice About 12 Inches Thick.

The work of harvesting this winter's crop from the ice fields in the Hudson river is expected to be started Monday morning by the Knickerbocker Ice Company and Burns Brothers Ice Corporation, and it is expected that every ice company along the river will fill the empty houses if possible.

Harvesting the Rondout creek crop will also be started on Monday morning by the Knickerbocker Ice Company when they will start to fill their big house under the Wilbur bridge. The ice there runs from 11 to 12 inches in thickness and is of good quality.

The Knickerbocker Company will start filling the ice houses at Turkey Point and Flatbush with river ice the same day.

At Steep Rocks the Burns Brothers will put a crew of men to work filling the big house there.

Ferries Still Running.
The ferry transport is still making trips across the river with the aid of the tug Rob which is helping to keep the channel open. The Skillypot is also still plying the Rondout creek. There are no other boats running with the exception of the ones just mentioned.

Brazilians Are Courteous.

Brazilians are among the most suave courteous and considerate people in the world. Etiquette is a matter of great formality. Acquaintances raise their hats to one another on passing, no matter how often they may meet in the course of a day. A crowded street car is full of murmured apologies from those getting on and off. The Brazilians pride themselves on having inherited the finest traditions of manners and artistic feeling from the Latin nations of southern Europe. Courteous, temperamental and courageous, the typical Brazilian is quick to resent any encroachment on his rights and slow to abandon the fight to maintain them.

Old Illustrated Book.

One of the oldest illustrated books is that of "Aesop's Fables," published about 1471. It has initial letters of 24 interest, and upward of 160 very fine wood cuts. The copies which have survived the centuries are bound in thick oak boards, covered with tipped leather. There was a book bound in Florence only five years after the Aesop which had three copper-plate engravings, and one of the most remarkable features of the early illustrated works is the grace and excellence of their tail-pieces and type, and the fresh look which the ink has.

Much-Bearing Country.

Nearly per cent of continental Canada is undiscovered, and if Indian reports to be believed, notes a correspondent, there is in the basin of the Marize river one of the largest areas of possible oil-bearing country on face of the earth. The Indians report the existence of lakes a hundred miles over long in Yukon that no man has ever seen, while even Indians themselves apparently know nothing of the as yet unexplored mountains.

Children and Fairies.
To the children, this is a story of the wonderful and unbelievable possibilities of life, for all the magic of it, its charm of unexpectedness, says the Atlantic Monthly. A child is a bit puzzled by the inevitable: in the fairy world it does not exist. In that world he slips away from the world of grown-ups, with its endless consequences, remorselessly homing the gay, irresponsible little child. He loves the grown-ups and it is not from them that he wishes to escape, but from their world, their difficult, unyielding world.

Curing Elephant's Cold.
A circus man, caught in the act of curing an elephant of a cold, was dared to take his own medicine. He declined but invited the interviewer to return the next day and see the elephant cured. And the next day, sure enough, the elephant was rid of the cold. What was the treatment? Nothing complicated at all. The keeper placed a bucket of boiling hot vinegar in a bag and then tied the latter snugly about the indisposed animal's trunk so that he was compelled to inhale the medicinal fumes whether he wished to or not.

Strength of Stitches.
Tests made by the bureau of standards in Washington prove that seams sewn with the double lock stitch are stronger than those sewn with the shuttle stitch and are less weakened by breaks of the thread.

SUPERVISORS' ASSOCIATION ANNUAL DINNER

Good Food, Good Speeches and a Good Time at Annual Reunion of Men Who Are or Have Been Supervisors.

An excellent dinner faultlessly cooked and served, pleasing music rendered by a good orchestra, some inspiring addresses, and the best quality of "smokes" were the features of the annual banquet of the Ulster County Supervisors' Association, held at the Stuyvesant Hotel on Thursday afternoon.

Good fellowship reigned supreme and it was one of those delightful get-together affairs where all formality is forgotten and the cordial handshake is heartily extended, and old friendships are renewed and new friends are found.

Delancy N. Mathews, the president of the association, presided at the banquet and acted as toastmaster and his witty remarks in introducing the speakers was one of the bits of the afternoon's gathering.

Many Good Speakers.

Judge James A. Belts made the principal address of the afternoon. Addresses were also made by Judge John G. Van Etten and County Attorney John W. Eckert.

Informal speeches were made by County Judge James Jenkins, Daniel W. Benton, who was supervisor from 1890 to 1892, County Treasurer Philip Schantz of Highland, who was supervisor from the town of Lloyd in 1891-1894 and many years thereafter, John D. Fratscher, supervisor from Saugerties, and formerly county clerk in 1901-1912, C. Meech Woolsey, supervisor from Marlborough, Abram S. Denton, former supervisor from Gardiner, James Lounsbury, supervisor from the town of Rochester, William H. Kolts, supervisor from the third ward of Kingston, Major James H. Everett of Kingston, and Tjerek I. Rifenbary, retiring supervisor from the Second ward of Kingston.

Patriotism is Keynote.

In practically all of the speeches reference was made to the war and mention of President Wilson, and our boys "over there" was greeted with hearty applause.

Patriotism and love of country was emphasized in the speeches and Judge Belts before beginning his address, proposed a toast to President Wilson. The toast was given with a hearty response and every person remained standing after the toast while the orchestra rendered "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Large American flags composed part of the decorations in the dining room.

A Tempting Banquet.

The management of The Stuyvesant deserves to be congratulated upon the excellence of the banquet. Everything was cooked and served in a way that left nothing to be desired.

Olives, celery, pickles, relish, oysters on the half shell, cream of tomato soup, cream and served with potatoes and cucumbers, salad, home dressed turkey with mashed potatoes, asparagus and cranberries, ice cream, cake, fancy wafers, and coffee were some of the good things on the menu and the diners did full justice to this tempting spread.

Last, but surely not least, were choice cigars, made in Kingston.

Renew Old Friendships.

After the inner man had been satisfied and the speeches concluded, practically all of those present formed little informal groups in the lobby of the hotel and many old friendships were renewed. In reminiscent mood stories were swapped and happenings of the "old days" were discussed. Years dropped as if by magic and the "older boys" became again the "young boys" of the days gone by.

Address of Judge Belts.

Judge Belts, in his address, stated that the office of supervisor was an important one and was not to be measured only by the compensation paid, for money is not the principal thing that will benefit the community and the taxpayers in a just and equitable way brings its own reward and satisfaction. The judge, referred by way of illustration to his twenty-five year of service as president of the board of managers of the Kingston City Hospital, and said that money could not give him the satisfaction that he has received from that work.

A Touch of Humor.

Many witty remarks were made by the judge during his address. "We have wheelless days," said the judge, "and we have meatless days and if William Jennings Bryan and others have their way, we will have 'treeless' nights."

"Be of good cheer, gentlemen. The worst is yet to come. We will soon have treeless nights. Just think of it!"

America Will Win the War.

The latter part of the judge's address was in patriotic vein and his remarks along these lines were inspiring and were received with liberal applause.

"We are fighting a nation," said the judge, "that for forty years has been teaching its boys how to kill men. We realize that it is a serious business, but we ought to face it cheerfully, with confidence of the outcome. Our boys are going to the front with a smile and a song—we do not want them to think that we who are left behind have tears for their songs."

"We should keep cheerful and have our recreation and these go together. The God of wars will not desert us. He produced a George Washington to lead us, then a struggling young nation, into freedom. He gave us Abraham Lincoln in the '60s, when our nation was torn and divided, and now He has given us a Wood-

Van Wageningen, Robert F. Macaulay, Frederick Stephan, Jr., F. Arthur Westbrook, were all district attorneys of this county, and Howard Chinn, Jr., was a member of the constitutional convention. J. Newton Fiero was member of assembly from Albany county and is now reporter of the court of appeals. Philip Billing was U. S. shipping commissioner and as such was boss of the Atlantic ocean and its tidal tributaries, including the Pacific.

The clerks of the board of supervisors have also been signally honored. Robert F. Macaulay was district attorney. Jacob Hardenburgh was the great senator from this district. Israel Snyder, county clerk of Ulster county, Alton B. Parker was surrogate of Ulster county. Justice of the supreme court from this judicial district, chief judge of the court of appeals of the state of New York and the candidate of his party for the great position of president of the United States. John E. Kraft was mayor of the city of Kingston and New York state civil service commissioner. Alfred Tanner has been for fifty years more or less the strong arm of the Raines law of this state. Edward B. Walker, Jr., has been a consul from the United States to some portion of Great Britain for many years. Your present speaker has been honored greatly by the people of this part of the state and he counts it amongst his greatest achievements that the knowledge he acquired while clerk of the Ulster county board of supervisors served him in the strongest stead in knowing when to gracefully submit to having a nomination forced upon him when victory seemed possible and when to display great agility in successfully dodging a nomination when the "sledding" looked very uncertain. Charles T. Coutant was a member of assembly as was Henry R. DeWitt, the present clerk, and you all know that the venerable Christopher Kierstead Loughran, whose presence adorns this and any gathering at which he may be present, was for countless years clerk of the board of supervisors and is now county clerk.

Judge Van Etten Speaks.

Judge Van Etten made a five minute address in which he touched upon the profit and pleasure in getting together affairs such as the banquet.

The judge also spoke eloquently about the war and emphasized the value and the imperative need of the co-operation of every American, especially along the lines of food conservation.

"Few of us here," said the judge, "have the privilege of going with our boys to fight in the struggle for democracy, but those of us who have to stay at home can help in many ways, and one of the most important, if not the most important way in which we can do our bit is in the conservation of food."

"This is a struggle for a principle. There cannot be two issues. There must be democracy or autocracy, and we must prove to the world that a democracy such as ours can survive."

"Our allies must lack nothing that we can give them. A community of this kind strengthens itself as it goes along. The burden is our homes and we must conserve our food products in every possible way, especially our wheat."

Speech of County Attorney Eckert. Mr. Eckert, the next speaker, was much handicapped by a bad cold, and only spoke briefly, but his speech was helpful and was enthusiastically received.

Mr. Eckert spoke of his connection with the board for the past six or seven years and said that they had been the happiest days of his life, productive of some strong and helpful friendships.

"I know that the supervisors and the officers connected with the board are very often criticised," said Mr. Eckert, "but we take satisfaction and pride in the knowledge that our efforts work to the ultimate end of the public good."

The good accomplished in the get together socials was emphasized by Mr. Eckert, who suggested that would be a good plan to get together very often in this way, not only the talking over of national affairs, but also for discussing local laws.

Judge Jenkins Speaks.

County Judge Jenkins was ded upon for a few words and spoke along the lines of team work. He stated that team work and co-operation of every American is essential in winning this great war.

The judge stated that for long time we tried individualism, that it led us nowhere. During the last six months we have substituted team work for the individualism and we are getting results.

In Germany autocracy rules. Everything is done with the policeman's club to back it up. There might be right. That is the principle of autocracy. This country is democracy. Rules are obeyed, not because of the policeman's club, but through the living up the principles of patriotism, love freedom, and fear of God.

Judge Jenkins urged need of cooperating with the Red Cross and the other organizations means that are being used to help our country in this time of stress. Food conservation is a vital factor in the winning of the war, was emphasized by the judge.

Many Informal Remarks.

A number of informal remarks were made by the present, and practically all of these remarks were along patriotic lines, and all of the speakers emphasized their conviction.

CHILDREN NEED FOOD—NOT ALCOHOL

How careless it is to accept alcoholic medicine for children when everybody knows that their whole health and growth depends upon correct nourishment. If your children are pale, listless, underweight or puny, they absolutely need the special, concentrated food that only

Honest Confession.

No man can ever lack this mortification of his vanity, that what he knows is but a very little in comparison with what he is ignorant of. After a few personal words he writes that "We sure had an exciting time here last week. I suppose you have read all about it in the papers by this time. I wish I could tell you, but I am not allowed to mention anything that happens over here."

The letter continues "We had some trip. Took 14 days to cross the pond and landed in England where we spent two weeks and then crossed over to France. Where we are now located the rumble of the guns sounds like a thunder storm, but it don't bother us for we sleep as if we were in feather beds, and you know I like my sleep."

In closing he asks that Mr. Dougherty write soon and give him all the news for he is miles from town or people and "can't get any kind of newspaper, so we depend on the mail for news."

This box is for the Kenilworth mountain people who are under the care of our well known missionaries, Mr. and Mrs. Messier, who make good use of anything that is sent. You!

(By Pauline Worth Hamlin, of The Vigilantes.)

I cannot help wondering if we are going to be driven to a dreadful realization that we are at war when it is too late?

I do not for an instant doubt that were the Germans actually marching through New England, as they invaded France, we would rise as one man and give of our money to the last penny, of our food to the last crumb and of our strength to the last ounce.

If the American people would only come to the realization that the success of this war depends upon individual service!

So many people seem to feel that it does not matter much what they do, so they go on eating sugar, beef and wheat, heedless of the daily appeals for food conservation.

But remember this, your neighbor may think the same way—and his neighbor, and his neighbor, and on and on until the outcome will be that the boys Over There will be putting up a losing fight because you thought what you might conserve would not amount to anything. This is the time for egotism to rule. You cannot. Everything you save counts. And you mean YOU!

SOLDIERS' SHOES DO NOT FIT FEET

Most of the blame rests on the inexperienced men, who insist on having shoes that are too small. By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Dec. 28.—Only 17 per cent of the men in the fighting forces of the United States have shoes that fit correctly. Quartermaster General Sharpe admitted in an official statement today.

The statement was called forth by the criticism of the quartermaster general's department in the Senate Military Affairs Committee's investigation for supplying shoes too short for newly recruited soldiers. Much of the blame for the improper fitting of shoes is placed by the quartermaster general on the men themselves.

Figures have been collected by the surgeon general's office on the fit of shoes worn by 32,359 men, one group on the Mexican border, one at a National Army camp, another at a National Guard camp, and a fourth at a naval camp. The per cent of misfits reported from each examination was about the same. From examinations at Camp Devens it was shown that 28 per cent of the men had shoes half a size too short, 26 per cent had shoes one size short, 19 per cent wore shoes 1½ sizes too short and 8 per cent had shoes 2 sizes too short. Four per cent had shoes too long or 2½ sizes too short. Fifteen per cent were properly fitted.

The quartermaster general says in explanation that soldiers recently recruited judge the fit of shoes according to their custom in civil life and insist upon shoes too short to fit them. He says faults of method and supervision of fitting, insufficient numbers of larger and narrower sizes and incorrect marking of sizes by manufacturers are other causes for the larger proportion of misfits.

Smiles Instead of Tears.

"You sent me away with a smile. I'm still wearing that smile." These words were on a souvenir postal received by Corporation Counsel William D. Brunner, Sr. from the 11-year-old boys at Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Georgia. Smiles instead of tears are what the boys need from the folks at home.

BASEBALL IS MOST DANGEROUS PASTIME

List of Fatalities in Various Sports for Ten Years.

Records Show Diamond Game More Hazardous Than Either Football or Boxing—Athletics Fit Men for War Duties.

Records which were recently made public through the columns of a medical journal, comprising a list of fatalities in various branches of sports for the past ten years, show that baseball is a more dangerous sport than football or boxing.

The calamity howlers who have had football and boxing on the pan for a number of years may not have so much to say when they discover this fact, for fact it is. The fatality lists were compiled by Dr. Robert E. Coughlin, a prominent New York medical man, and were gathered carefully and compiled from year to year. They embrace baseball, football, boxing, rowing, automobile racing, tennis, golf, bowling, aviation, walking, running, horse racing and every branch of sport in which there is a lively interest.

Best Safeguard.

In discussing the features of his compilation, Doctor Coughlin made the point that the best safeguard against injuries in any branch of sports is perfect physical condition, and urged that those who go in for sports of any kind should make themselves physically fit before indulging liberally in their favorite pastime.

"Let us have games, athletics, baseball, pugilism, golf, tennis, cricket, running, rowing, swimming, sprinting, basketball, cycling, wrestling, skating, dancing, jumping, bowling, football and all-around performances by all means. But let us make our young men physically fit to survive athletic competition without suffering injury to their constitutions," wrote Doctor Coughlin. "In this way we may hope to make them ideal soldiers of the future."

Interesting Figures.

The figures compiled, however, are by far the most interesting to the average reader. They show that in ten years 284 players were killed on the baseball diamonds of the country, and this number totals the total number of fatalities in any other sport branch. Football comes second with 215 deaths, while automobile racing, long considered little better than suicide, is third with 114. Boxing, one of the most condemned of the so-called dangerous sports, is fourth, with 105 fatalities.

The cycling game has resulted in the death of 77 riders within ten years' time, while horse racing comes sixth on the list, with a total of 54, and wrestling seventh with 15. One would hardly expect to see the mild old game of golf in this list, but according to Doctor Coughlin, no less than 14 golfers have met death on the links. This is within one of the total football fatalities for 1916, when 15 players lost their lives, so it is possible to figure that football is just about ten times as dangerous as golf.

Other sports included in the list, together with the deaths for ten years, are as follows: Bowling, 9; gymnastics, 3; hammer throwing, 1; bike coasting, 1; handball, 1; polo, 2; weight lifting, 2; lawn tennis, 1; vaulting and dancing, 1.

ROSS OUGHT TO SPECIALIZE

Olympic Club Star Is Making Mistake in Not Concentrating His Efforts, Say Swimmers.

Men well posted in swimming affairs, as well as a number of expert swimmers, have expressed the opinion that Norman Ross, the Olympic club star and holder of a dozen or more national and world records in various swimming events, is making a mistake in not specializing and concentrating his efforts.

Ross is admitted to be one of the most versatile mermen that ever took to the water, and has shown his prowess in both long and short distance events. From the 50-yard sprint to the grueling mile swim across the Golden Gate, Ross has achieved fame, but the contention is made that Ross is naturally an athlete most likely to achieve distinction in the 220 and 440-yard events.

By specializing in these it is maintained that he would eventually set figures for these swims that it would take years to beat, with the likelihood that he might establish marks which would keep him in the records for a long time after his swimming days if not for all time.

In attempting to negotiate all kinds of swims and distances, the contention is made that while Ross may win, and even break records, these figures will not be as decisive, and may soon be bettered by other men who specialize.

Johnson also pitched two two-hit games and once allowed one hit.

Dosia's Adventure

By Agnes C. Brogan

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

Something interesting is sure to happen to Dosia if she merely starts for a shopping trip downtown it will end in some unexpected manner.

"I'll be back in time for luncheon," she told mother one morning, and mother smiled.

"We know the usual outcome of your good intentions, Dosia," she told her, "and will not expect you until we see you." And just as Dosia had finished her shopping and was starting homeward, down came a heavy shower. Immediately she thought of the tea-room nearby, as a refuge; she would lunch here while the storm lasted.

She was enjoying herself immensely listening to the soft-toned music and reading the morning paper, when the pictured face of a man beneath a glaring headline held her attention. It was not that the face was handsome or one familiar, but just that the eyes seemed to look into hers in a most compelling hypnotic way. When she laid the paper aside, there still were the eyes seeming to stare at her through the folds.

Some instinct told Dosia that the man of the picture was innocent of the crime of which he had been accused. She was unconsciously sure of this, but why—had he run away? The night before a limousine belonging to the noted and wealthy Celestia Niel had been wrecked by an automobile rounding recklessly a dark corner. Mrs. Niel, an occupant of her car at the time, was now in an adjacent hospital succumbing to the removal of broken glass from her hip, as a result of the accident. In the meantime detectives were engaged in hunting down her assailant.

The chauffeur's presence of mind in noting the man's auto number had led to the discovery of his name, and the picture published from a fraternity group of which he was a member. The young man himself had mysteriously disappeared. The car which wrecked the Niel limousine had been returned to the garage from which it was rented. The chief horror, as dwelt upon by the paper lay in the fact that the victim had been the great Madam Niel.

"I wonder," thought Dosia, "why that honest-eyed Donald Stewart could not prove himself guiltless?" And then, with a blinding electric flash, the tea-room lights went out. There they sat, those softly chattering people, with the food before them, in darkness, for it was dark, too, outside. Dosia discerned a man groping his way to her table.

"Oh!" she cried, starting up as a thunderclap shook the building.

"Do not be afraid," the man said gently, "we are safe here and the storm is really passing over." And at the sound of the confident voice Dosia sank back strangely reassured. Glimmering along the way came the waitress, bearing a shaded candle. This she placed between them upon the white-spread table, and Dosia, glancing over its rose-colored top, looked straight into the hypnotic eyes of the paper.

"You!" she gasped.

The man nodded toward the paper. "So," he said, "you've seen it."

"Yes," said Dosia. She leaned eagerly forward. "Oh, why," she said, "didn't you give yourself up and prove them wrong?"

The man stared at her and then smiled. "How do you know," he asked, "that I was not to blame?"

"Never mind," Dosia answered absently. "I do know. Now tell me all about it."

For a long time they sat looking at each other across the light. "I'm a student," he said, "in my last year at medical college. It's been a desperate fight to get that far in my profession, but I've made it—and something to start practice on besides. I've got to make good to pay back the confidence and kindness of friends."

"Last night I hired that car to go on a trial case. I was going on regulation speed, when, noiselessly, without light or signal, that limousine rounded a corner. I crashed into it—unharmful. The chauffeur had been drinking; when I stopped for explanation, he gave me nothing but curses. I saw a shattered window but believed the limousine to be unoccupied, and rode on. Returning the next car, I went out, as is my weekly custom, to the papers this morning I came back. That's all; but it will cost me every cent I have saved, or worse. There is no one to prove the truth of my story.

"But," cried Dosia eagerly, "why don't you explain to Mrs. Niel herself?"

The man laughed shortly. "Do you think they'd let me see her this morning?" he said. "The privilege of 'explaining' will be allowed me only with the judge."

Quickly Dosia reached for her coat. "Wait here," she begged breathlessly, "until I call you up on the phone," and she was gone. One moment she waited to buy some fresh roses, then the taxi that she signaled went rushing on its errand. A smilingly apologetic Dosia entered her home that evening. "I have been gone a long time," she said, "but you see I had to talk with an old lady at the hospital."

It was not until Madame Niel had withdrawn her charges and vindicated Donald Stewart from blame that we were permitted to meet him.

"Don't you see it?" asked Dosia, "that true look in his eyes?" And we confess we do—when those same eyes rest upon Dosia.

STOCKING HABIT IS STUPID.

So Declares Writer in German Paper, Discussing Need of Economizing in Nation's Supplies.

In the large towns going barefooted is a thing which is to fight against social prejudices, and even in war time it is difficult to establish the habit, although it would be wise to save up stockings and shoes for the bad weather, when we shall need them. Says a writer in the Frankfurter Zeitung. People wait for one another to begin—wait until the warm summer has passed. It is really stupid and we ought not to be stupid in matters which are connected with our immense struggle for existence. But in this matter, as in others, the young are quicker to find the right course than the cautious and timorous old ones. In the streets of our great cities there is now an increase in the number of stockingless wearers of sandals—mostly of the female sex. This method of economizing our supplies is more appropriate to a large town than the more radical method of going barefooted. And it really does not look bad. Perhaps the sandal-makers could take more account of feminine coquettishness and produce really pretty, "dainty" samples. But even as the sandals are they do quite well. Three young maidens—as a matter of fact, they are already young ladies—have just chattered by in stockingless sandals. Two old gentlemen stand at the corner of the street and watch the merry young ones. Of course, they are ill-humored old people who are grumbling at this "modern scandal." Not a bit of it. They nod to one another and it is easy to read their satisfaction in their movements. The three maidens, moreover, were not beauties; they were just young and bold and had risked it.

Sometimes Justified.

Representative John N. Garner of Texas, told this story at a social affair a few evenings ago, as an illustration that one is sometimes eminently justified in reversing his judgment.

In a happy little home in the south there is a pretty seven-year-old daughter named Bessie. Recently Bessie forgot her parlor etiquette and was told by her mother to go upstairs and sit on a certain chair for an hour.

Straight upstairs went Bessie. Straight to that certain chair walked Bessie. In fact, Bessie obediently did all that her mother told her to do.

"Mamma," softly called a small voice, after a half-hour of cold, lone-some silence, "May I come down now?"

"No, Bessie," was the prompt response of stern mamma. "You must remain right where you are until I call for you."

"All right, mamma," returned Bessie, with a sighful air of resignation, "but I ought to tell you that I am sitting on that new hat you just bought."

—Philadelphia Telegraph.

One On the Judge.

A clever young lawyer was defending a man accused of housebreaking. "Your Honor, I submit that my client did not break into the house at all. He found the parlor window open, inserted his right arm, and removed a few trifling articles. Now, my client's arm is not himself, and I fail to see how you can punish him for an offense committed only by one of his limbs."

"That argument," said the judge, "is very well put. Following it logically, I sentence the defendant's arm to one year's imprisonment. He can accompany it, or not, just as he chooses."

The prisoner calmly unscrewed his cork arm, and, leaving it in the dock, walked out.

Butterfly Carnival.

A strange sight was seen recently in County Roscommon, and indeed, throughout central Ireland, where, amidst of rare and beautiful butterflies, were seen some of the most beautiful and rarest of the species which are seen on a single plant. It was a record occasion for collectors.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

RICH MISS HEN.

"Cock-a-doodle-do," shouted Mr. Rooster.

"Cluck, cluck, cluck," said Miss Hen. "Cock-a-doodle-do," crowed Grandfather Red Top Rooster.

Such a noise as there was in the barnyard and all because a great many automobiles had gone by. Mr. Rooster was the first to complain.

"Once," he said, "my great-grandfather objected to these automobiles because he said that their honk-honk was noticed far more than his clucking."

"To be sure it would be, too," said Miss Hen, who was rather nervous. "Poor great-grandfather might have been run over and killed by one and there is always that awful chance that an automobile

CHRISTMAS AT INDUSTRIAL HOME

Think of it! Forty-two stockings "Hung by the chimney with care, in the hope that St. Nicholas soon would be there!" and forty-two eager little folks who could scarcely wait for Christmas Day, which finally came and was just brim full of happiness. And best of all not one of the little folks sick after a good, big Thanksgiving dinner! That is what the Industrial Home has to report. In the morning there was the jolliest time possible when in the stockings were found an orange, nuts, candy and one other little gift. This and anticipations kept things pretty lively until dinner time when the following good dinner was hugely enjoyed: Roast turkey with dressing and gravy; cranberry sauce; mashed potatoes; boiled onions; creamed turnips, celery, and for dessert, oranges and candy. The children had as their guests of honor the much loved president of the board of managers, Miss Van Leuven and Mrs. P. B. Collier, who in turn greatly enjoyed the children's happiness. After dinner all adjourned to the drawing room where a beautiful Christmas tree was in waiting. The children sang Christmas carols and each child was presented with a box of candy and one real nice gift. It was a very full day, and there were forty-two tired little folks when bed time came, but it was a healthy, happy tired and not one was sick. The managers feel that such a truly "Merry Christmas" is the best possible return for all the kindness and generosity of the people of Ulster county and Kingston city.

Christmas Entertainment.

All who attended the Christmas entertainment at St. James Sunday School last night were persuaded that it was the best that had been given in many years. There was a very large gathering, and the rooms were made beautiful, this being the work of W. R. Harrison's Bible class. S. D. Gibson, the superintendent, was in charge. Mrs. E. L. Angle was chairman of the committee, being assisted by Miss Teller and others. Miss Mildred Harrison and Miss Miriam Pitts rendered piano solos. Mrs. A. H. Haines gave a fine recitation. Miss Margaret Ancie sang a solo. Seven young ladies rendered two choruses. Four lovely tableaux, arranged by Dr. Baragwanath, were given in the first scene. "The Shepherd," E. J. Kearney sang "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks" was a reminder of early Dutch Kingston, and while this was being shown Mrs. J. Guttig read appropriately, "The Soldiers' Camp Fire," depicted the "boys" around a camp fire, with all the appropriate scenery. The audience sang, "The Star Spangled Banner." The last was "The Visit of Santa Claus," during which Miss Alberta Silkworth recited. A feature was the presentation of a fine gift to the superintendent. The speech was made by Dr. P. N. Chase. Refreshments were served by the committee.

Pump With No Valves.
For purposing heavy liquids a Welsh inventor has designed a combined piston and rotary pump with no valves that can be easily clogged.

Our Soldiers in Camp.
On Sunday night in the St. James Methodist Church, Secretary Thorneberry of the local Y. M. C. A., will give the story of his experiences as a Y. M. C. A. worker in the big campaign in New Orleans. Mr. Thorneberry also worked among naval recruits. Those who have given so generously to the Y. M. C. A. should know what is being done and the speaker on Sunday night will tell of the work that has already been accomplished. He will inform us of the life of the soldiers in camp, their work and their play, and also their peculiar temptations. Kingston will want to know—Kingston ought to know.

C. OF C. BOOSTS THE BARGE CANAL

Conference in Poughkeepsie to be Followed by One in Rochester on January 4 at Which Kingston Should be Represented.

Secretary Ed. M. Heermans of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, participated in an important conference held in Poughkeepsie Thursday evening, at which new momentum was given to the barge canal project.

This conference grew out of one held in Rochester, Dec. 18, called for considering ways and means of improving defense measures against the threatening enemy aliens. But little was accomplished at the Rochester conference, except to hear and discuss suggestions.

Another conference, this to be a state-wide one, is called to be held in Rochester, January 4 next, which all officers and members of county defense councils, officers of the Hudson Valley Chamber of Commerce Federation and all chamber of commerce officials, as well as others, are expected to attend.

This second conference will assume wider scope in every way than the preliminary one.

At the Poughkeepsie conference yesterday, presided over by Colonel Rogers chairman of the Dutchess County Council of Defense, and attended by numerous members of the Hudson Valley Federation, it was decided to make three issues the most important at the forthcoming Rochester conference.

These are: (1) Prevention of disasters at industrial plants, bridges, etc., by enemy aliens; (2) Expansion of industrial resources by bringing to the attention of the government all available industrial plants in New York State and (3) Urging the completion of the barge canal as a national measure, because of the strategic importance of such a waterway to (a) the war and navy departments and (b) to the food and fuel problems of today.

A committee was appointed to set forth this program to be presented to the next Rochester conference. George E. McCoy, president of the Federation was chosen chairman of this committee. Other members are President Beall of the Newburgh Chamber of Commerce; Colonel C. A. Simmons secretary of the Poughkeepsie Chamber of Commerce and Secretary Heermans.

The program will have the backing and endorsement of the entire Hudson Valley Federation.

Secretary Heermans said today that he hoped that the officers and members of the Ulster County Council of Defense, officers and others of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, Mayor Canfield and any others who can, will arrange to attend the Rochester conference.

"Kingston must be behind this new angle to the barge canal and show their interest by attending the conference. It is the plan to get every commercial organization of the state back of the program and the legislature will not dare ignore this matter at its next session, for the powers of the government will also be involved," said Kingston's secretary.

St. John's Christmas Entertainment.

The boys and girls of St. John's Church had a very merry time of it on Thursday evening, when the electric-lighted Christmas tree was the center of attraction. Before the tree was lighted, and the great white star shone out in the dim light of the room, the rector, the Rev. J. Blair Larned told the children of how Phillips Brooks wrote the Christmas Hymn, now loved the world over. "Oh! Little Town of Bethlehem!" on the very spot where it is supposed that the manger stood, and then after giving his Christmas message, the children sang the beautiful hymn. During the singing of the last verse the tree suddenly burst into light with many "Ons!" and "Ahs!" of delight. Each child received a gift and some candy while the adults present were remembered with oranges. After the gifts had been distributed, and the Christmas carols sung, and the rector's talk listened to attentively and with appreciation, a sort of Christmas party followed for the children. During the reception ice cream and cake was served and so came to a close the happy event of the Christmas tree for 1917.

MORAN BUSINESS SCHOOL.

Situations Secured by Graduates Attest Thorough Preparation.

Although the following list could be easily extended, enough is shown to convince young men and women interested in a business course as to the value of a Moran Business School training. That this institution is maintaining its record in placing graduates may be readily seen.

Three months ago Joseph H. Hazen of this city, went directly from the school to Poughkeepsie for his United States civil service examination, in which he was successful, and within three weeks was appointed to a $1200 position in the treasury department. Washington, D. C. The training of which he received in civil service subjects—stenography, touch, typewriting, arithmetic, letter writing, and copying from rough draft—proved invaluable to him in the examination.

The shorthand and business training received in the Moran School enabled John Hurson and Francis Castor to accept good positions with J. Graham Rose, Consolidated Rosendale Cement Company; Anna Butler and Bessie M. Wynkoop with the Campbell Motor Car Company; Charles F. Jenks and Ruth F. Deegan with the Canfield Supply Company; James T. Kenny and B. J. Schwalbach with the Texas Oil Company; Edward A. McCaffrey with the Cornell Steamboat Company; Mildred DuBois with Everett & Treadwell; Margaret M. Schaezel with the Prudential Insurance Company; Helen Turner with Hon. William D. Brinnier; Anna Cole with the Modern Plumbing Company; John T. McCarrigle with Herbert Brush Manufacturing Company; Eugene A. Freer with Quartermaster Department; Kathleen Whalen with Girard L. McEntee and Son; Ruth A. Humphrey with the White Engineering Construction Company; Katherine Everett with the Kingston National Bank; Mae Naher with the Hon. Frederick Stephan; Vera M. Van Kleeck with Brown Vulcanizing Works; Michael J. Maher with Nitro Powder Company; Frieda Menzel with County Attorney John D. Eckert; John J. Hickey with New York Board of Water Supply; Margaret Lebert with M. H. Herzog; Jennie M. Martine with C. E. Hasbrouck; Edward J. Murray with New York Central Railroad Company; Mabel Nestell with Ulster county sheriff's office; Kathryn Messinger with S. M. Gray, grain broker; Chester E. Tice with Mutual Sales Company; Joseph E. Brewer with Morris & Company; Anna T. Reilly with W. S. Fredenburgh, Insurance; Anna Blitzhof with Shultz & Bogart; Joseph Man-kee with Degnon Contracting Company; John Sammon with Graves Manufacturing Company; Gladys Fraleigh with S. Weisberg; Anna E. Hilbrandt with William O. Schwarz; Catherine McMahon with Charles A. Borst; Beatrice Goldwasser with the Carbolineum Wood Preserving Company; Gertrude Roehl with Paradise Real Estate Agency; John Schick with Universal Road Machinery Company.

Now is the time to master shorthand, typewriting, spelling, copying, from rough draft, arithmetic, letter writing, and to help Uncle Sam in Washington or the private business.

Why They Are Called "Posters."
Posters took their name from the fact that in former times the footways of London were separated from the drives by a line of posts, on which advertisements were displayed.
